Nom retiré eleased their poll suggesting the BC Cons were winning by 2-points - - - I knew right then that the BC NDP were ahead in the popular vote.

Never fails - he's never been right

This guy couldn't get laid in a whore house with $5000 in cash in his hand.

Hot off the press. 1000 interviews in the City of Toronto. 🎉🎉🎉

4 out of 10 @BonnieCrombie @OntLiberal supporters and 3 out of 10 @MaritStiles @OntarioNDP supporters want the bike lanes on Yonge and on Bloor West removed. 🚫🚫🚫

The Ford PCs are polling at their highest level in the City of Toronto at 39%. ✅✅✅

The "some people say" vs "other people say" technique is a "forced choice" question with specific bike lanes on specific streets for each question and in this study - a battery of 6 specific bike lanes... 1 + 1 = 2

This allows the researcher/client to compare support and opposition to University Avenue bike lanes vs. Bloor St. West bike lanes vs. Danforth vs. Richmond, vs. YONGE, etc. You can see THE DATA cuts by age, male, female, region, voter segments, etc.

These types of questions (Forced Choice) are reserved for the end of the study and are preceded with more straightforward questions, such as the one below   that I have attached (to reduce bias throughout the study).

I've been doing public opinion market research for candidates for elections, political parties and governments -   very successfully  - for many years now (about 20 years now   and getting better with every year   ).

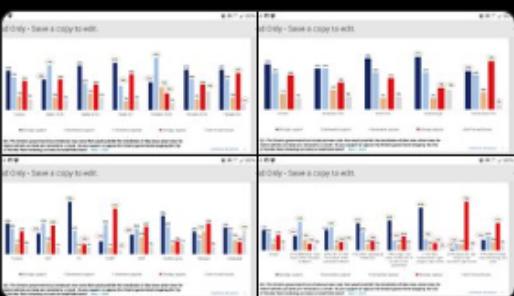

But, I am always open to rigorous peer review, comparing findings against election results and of course always open to criticisms - especially from those people that can "intelligently" speak to the issues   .

Per for the course tho, are many low-watt  , or many low-IQ  , or many ideologs  , or many people who are just very angry about something    - who chime in with their 2 cents.

If @BonnieCrombie and/or @MaritStiles thought my research was wrong, poor quality, riddled with errors, why wouldn't they come out to defend the bike lanes?

Why won't they even take a position, one way or the other way?

A Bunk Poll. Totally GARBAGE.

Now Advertising Dollars to promote it?

Things that make it obvious

Nom retiré · Jan 26

The latest Nom retiré shows Ford's PC Party leading over Crombie's Liberals and Stiles' NDP.

Check out our Ontario Election Dashboard to see how it translates to electoral district results.

Imagine where the Ontario Liberal number would be if not for 2 GARBAGE POLLS, from Nom retiré pulling them up?

You're really doing the Ontario NDP a dirty here allowing shit polling to bend the aggregators.

just completed 50 samples by Robo-dial & press-button answer telephone interviews in Northern Ontario and has the Ontario Liberals winning in the North.

Now, he's going to also lecture us about sex, when he's only ever had it with his 1st cousins.

Every population (pollster community) has prostitutes.

I may write all about it one day.
